MILK PRICE
Due to prevailing unusual conditions, it is impractical for the Board of Milk Producers to announce in advance the price it will pay for fluid milk delivered and accepted.
Therefore, until further notice, the price for fluid milk will not be announced until after said milk is delivered and accepted. The price will be published within five (5) days after the period for which the company will have heretofore announced the price in advance.

Water Vapor Is Needed to Sustain Animal Life

Disaster in many forms would come to the earth if the odds and ends of the atmosphere were tampered with in some way, according to data assembled by United States weather bureau, says Science Service.
Without water vapor, which even in the wettest parts of the earth constitutes only 1 per cent of the atmosphere, no plant and no animal life would be possible and the whole earth would be as dead and barren as the moon. There would be winds but never a shower. Clouds would be everywhere, though only of fine pulverized rock such as now fills, some believe, the atmosphere of the planet Venus.
The small amount of carbon dioxide in the air, it is explained, is absolutely essential to plant life and, since all animal life is dependent, directly or indirectly, upon plants, the removal of carbon dioxide would result in the extinction of life on earth.
High above the earth, some twenty to thirty miles, there is an amount of ozone so small that if brought together at average outdoor temperature and pressure it would make a sheet only about a tenth of an inch thick. If this gas were removed our eyes would soon go blind from the action upon them of that portion of the ultra-violet solar radiation which at present it shuts out completely. If, on the other hand, the quantity of ozone were increased several fold the ultra-violet light now reaching earth would be excluded, no vitamin D would be formed by it and there would be a rapid extinction of most if not all animal life, including man.

The Food We Consume

A normal man of fifty has in his life consumed 25 tons of food, and a hearty eater between 50 and 60 tons; but the former has the better expectation of life. As a nation, the Romans were the biggest eaters. They made gluttony a pastime. That was one cause of the collapse of the Roman empire.

Impeachment

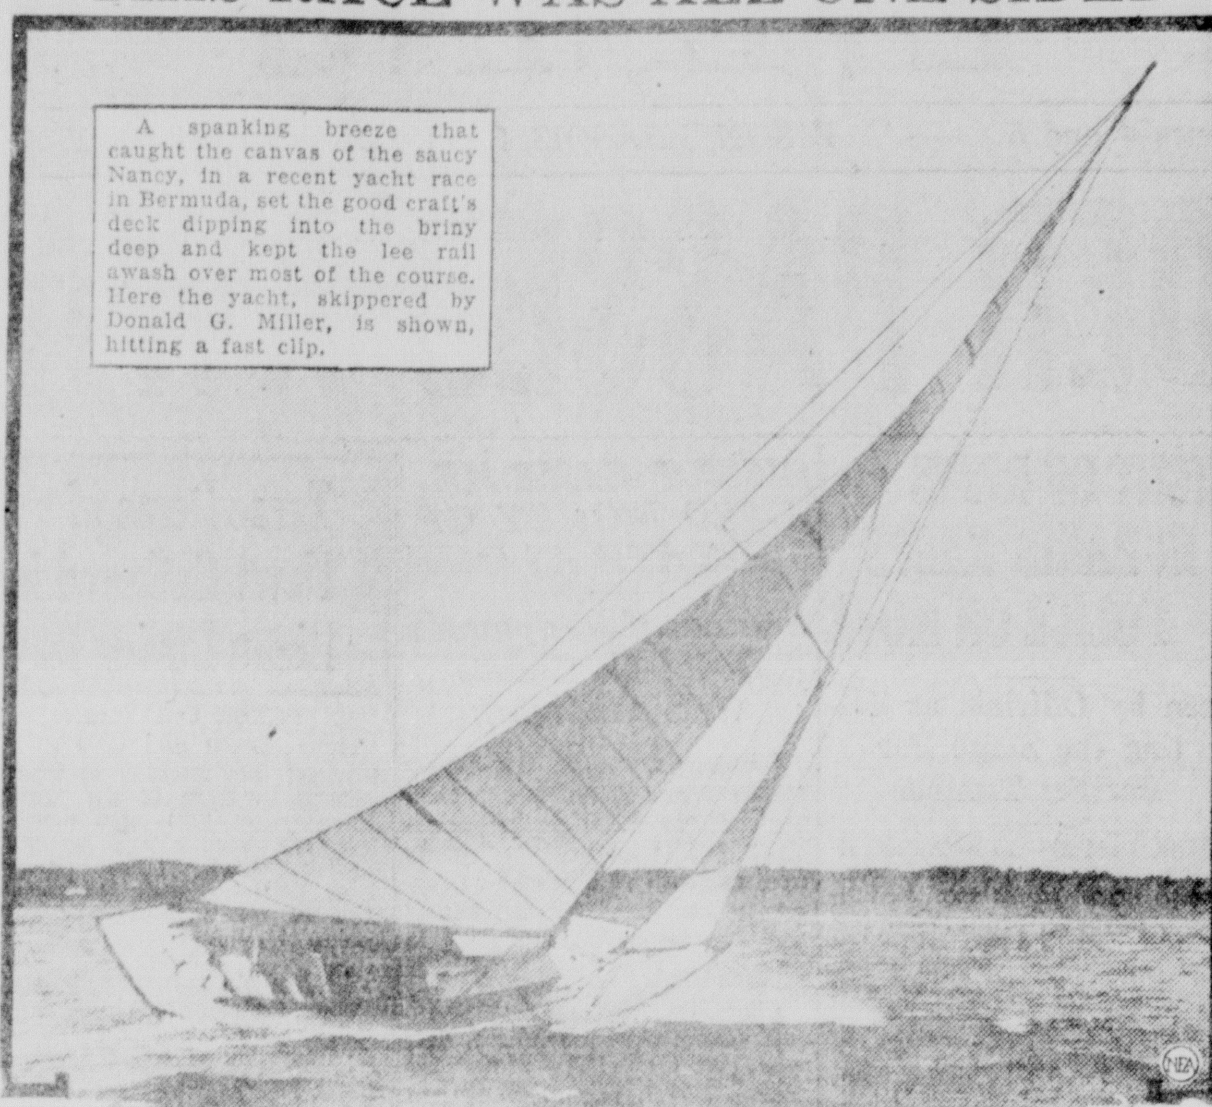

Impeachment is the act of bringing formal charges or accusation against any public officer of the federal or state governments, before a public tribunal qualified to pass upon the charges. There have been 12 federal impeachment trials in United States history.

Mexicans Battle Police to Protest Sex Education

Fighting bitterly against the proposal for sex education courses in primary schools, several hundred Mexican City parents, mostly mothers, battled police who attempted to halt their protest meeting. The picture shows the clash, in which mounted officers rode into the crowd, exchanged blows with the throng, and tore down banners. Many were injured in the melee.

Japan Frowns on Wings for China

Japan's sharp protest against sale of military planes to China as impeding the peace of East Asia was a slap at plane manufacturers and their representatives who are in China to sell airplanes and instruct Chinese fliers. Among U. S. airmen in the Orient is Frank Hawks, famous pilot, who is demonstrating to the Chinese the giant bomber with which he is pictured here on the eve of his sailing from Seattle, Wash., recently.

Damp Air Weighs Less

The weather bureau says damp air weighs less than dry air, as the dampness is due to the vapor of water in the air, and vapor of water is lighter than most of the other gases of the atmosphere.

Pretty Wedding at 5 o'clock Today

A simple, yet very pretty wedding was solemnized this afternoon at 5 o'clock at the parsonage to the Methodist church, when Rev. Gilbert Stansell, pastor of the church officiated at the marriage of Miss Arnette Pauline Dyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Cinnamon of this city, and Glenn Vipond, of Sterling.

Attending the couple were Miss Vivian Brantner and Miss Frances Praetz, and James Vipond, brother of the bridegroom, and Howard Cinnamon, cousin of the bride.

The bride was charming in an ensemble of medium blue, with accessories to match. Miss Brantner wore an attractive ensemble in brown; and Miss Praetz wore an equally attractive ensemble in dark blue, with accessories matching. The bride and her attendants all were charming corsages.

After the ceremony a wedding supper is to be served at the Hotel Dixon, to about ten guests, the decorations for which are in spring flowers and tapers.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Vipond are popular and charming people in a large circle of friends in both Dixon and Sterling and they have the best wishes of hosts of friends, for happiness. He is an employee of the Keeshin Co. They will make their home in Sterling in one of the Rubright houses on Eighth street.

Bross-Berg Wedding Today

A couple from Madison, Wisconsin, Rexford B. Bross and Miss Evelyn Berg, motored to Dixon this morning and were quietly married with the single ring ceremony at the parsonage to St. Paul's Lutheran church, with the pastor, Dr. L. W. Walter, officiating. There were no attendants and Mr. and Mrs. Bross returned to Madison, where Monday morning Mr. Bross will resume his position as an accountant in a Madison firm.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Bross are popular and charming people in a large circle of friends in both Dixon and Sterling and they have the best wishes of hosts of friends, for happiness. He is an employee of the Keeshin Co. They will make their home in Sterling in one of the Rubright houses on Eighth street.

The engagement was made known today at a charming luncheon given by Miss Karin Lundberg.

Meeting of Methodist Missionary Society Enjoyed Thurs.

The April meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist church was held Thursday, April 19, at the home of Mrs. Fred E. Ball, 1005 Highland avenue. The president, Mrs. H. D. Bills, opened the meeting by asking all to unite in silent prayer while Mrs. C. C. Rorick played softly "Sweet Hour of Prayer." All united in singing, "For the Beauty of the Earth," after which Mrs. W. A. Frey led the devotion. The thought was "The Lighted Highway"—the Road of the Mount. The Scripture Lesson was from the 5th chapter of Matthew, verses 1 to 12. "And He opened His mouth and taught them." Prayer was offered by Mrs. Clara Rowe.

Miss Naomi Wolf favored with a piano solo, "The Aeolian Harp" and responded to an encore.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved and the treasurer's report given. Also brief reports were given by the department secretaries. The president reminded all that the year's work must be closed in two months and urged all to do their best to meet all obligations.

Mrs. Clayton, Mrs. Stansell and Mrs. Randall were named to serve on the nominating committee as the election of officers will be May. This meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. J. Hintz.

Mrs. Charles Winebrenner had charge of the following program: An interesting article entitled "For Such a Time as This" was read by Mrs. G. P. Powell. It was a call to all Christian people to toil and dare that men can live together and not hate one another; that men can learn to live that millions will not starve; that society shall be changed so that there will not be any place in the world where there are men and women who have more money than they can spend or squander, while others die in want.

Miss Jennie Laing read a letter written by Miss Alma Matthews in which she expressed the joy and rewards that had been her during the forty years that she had been privileged to serve as the Home Missionary representative at Ellis Island, the government's port of entry to our country. Her only regret was that she had not another forty years to give being a true friend to a stranger in a strange land.

Last December this faithful worker went to her heavenly home, and a fitting tribute to Miss Matthews was written by one who had known her from the beginning of her work. This was read by Miss Flora Seals.

Mrs. Raymond Derr read a poem, "Bancroft-Taylor by the Sea," written by a retired missionary who lives in our Bancroft-Taylor Rest home at Ocean Grove, N. J.

Miss Leona Ort, accompanied by Miss Jane Bradford sang very sweetly two hymns, "Teach Me to Pray," and "Precious Hiding Place." All united in singing two verses of "A Charge to Keep I Have." The Lenten service was a candle lighting service in memory of pioneer missionaries. Miss Eleanor Clayton read a poem, "O Pioneers" and took charge of the lighting of the candles which were arranged at the foot of a lighted cross. Eight candles were lighted as Mrs. Winebrenner spoke briefly of pioneer workers for the Negro, the mountaineer, the Spanish, Alaskan, Immigrant and Children. At the foot of the lighted cross and in the glow of the candle light of remembrance, all placed our Lenten offering. This offering goes into the pension fund for retired missionaries. During the offering Mrs. B. R. Jacobson sang "The King's Highway," making all feel that this should be our commission.

A meeting of helpfulness and inspiration was brought to close by all uniting in singing the hymn, "The Lord Jesus Christ."

There was a good attendance and all remarked "What a good meeting we have had."

Serve Fresh Fruit in Banana Skins—And You've Got a Dream Boat

Unique Salad Uses Pulp of Orange and Grapefruit

What a problem it is to think up something different in the way of refreshments when it's your turn to have the bridge club for lunch! Every member has served chicken salad at least three times and chicken a la king has had a good run for its money, too. The delicious winter concoctions simply won't do at all in the springtime and it's not warm enough to start planning on paper-thin sandwiches and iced drinks.

What, the, is a hestess to do? Well, she can always fall back on that old favorite, fruit salad, but if the guests are to show one solitary speck of interest for the dish, it must be dressed up and served in some new and interesting manner. Why not put the fresh fruits into the skins of bananas that have been sliced lengthwise and fill them Dream Boats?

Here is a novel recipe for fruit salad. Allow one banana for each person to be served. Cut them lengthwise, remove pulp and arrange the skins on crisp lettuce on a huge platter.

Mix one-half cup of grapefruit pulp and one-half cup of white grapes with one-half cup of diced orange pulp. Add a few chopped nut meats and all of the banana pulp that was scooped out to make the boats. Moisten the mixture with French dressing and fill each boat with it. Garnish with maraschino cherries and serve with toasted cheese crackers.

After the ceremony the bridal party were entertained at a wedding breakfast at the Coffee House, following which the happy couple left on a short honeymoon trip for which the bride wore a smart traveling outfit. On their return to Dixon they will be at home some time in May in an apartment on Harrison avenue. Both young people are popular in a large circle of friends who wish them every happiness. He is an employee of the Brown Shoe Company.

Dinner and Shower For Miss Teeter

Mrs. Ray Wilson of West Ninth street entertained at a dinner last evening for Miss Phyllis Teeter who is soon to become the bride of Charles Myers.

A kitchen shower followed the nicely appointed dinner, in which the young bride-to-be received many nice gifts.

Bridge was played the remainder of the evening. Miss Helen Finney received first prize and Miss Mary Clarke received the consolation prize.

ILL. LEAGUE WOMEN VOTERS TO MEET MONDAY

The Illinois League of Women Voters will meet at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon with Mrs. Warren G. Murray at her home in the Dixon state hospital grounds, following the meeting the members will be taken on a tour of inspection through the institution.

New Books at Dixon Library

On Our Way—F. D. Roosevelt
The President says about his book—I think it will interest you if I set forth the fundamentals of this planning for national recovery, and this I am very certain will make it abundantly clear to you that all of the proposals and all of the legislation since the Fourth Day of arch have not been just a collection of hap-hazard schemes, but rather the orderly component parts of a connected logical whole."

Catherine, The Great—Anthony
The rise of the petty German princess to the throne of Russia has few parallels in literature since Cinderella, and the author makes the most of it. She portrays the empress with a keen eye for dramatic moments, and with a respect refreshingly tempered with humorous perception.

Rockwell Kentiana —Rockwell Kent
Mr. Kent has his ideas about art, and in this book of many pictures and few words he expresses them forcefully. And whether we agree with him or not, he is always provocative. This book contains a number of articles reprinted from periodicals and scattered books, check lists of Kent's wood-engravings and lithographs, and reproductions of many of his drawings, woodcuts and paintings.

Human Body—Cledenning
A practicing physician has written this sensible, readable and even humorous book on the physiology of the human body and the diseases to which it is prone. The structure and processes of the body are explained as simply as possible and excellently illustrated. It divides its time between debunking popular beliefs and furnishing sound information about the machine we trust so much and do so little to keep in order.

She danced her life as she has said, and the book which remained to us, is like that dancing, a full and candid expression of her experience and personality.

Jurgen—Cabell
The author calls his book a comedy of justice. The tale tells how Jurgen, a poet and pawnbroker, entering the cave on Amneran Heath in search of his wife, meets a centaur who transports him to the garden between dawn and sunrise, to relive a year of his youth. A blithely fantastic and a shrewdly pointed story. First published in 1919.

Anatol and Other Plays—By Schnitzler
Schnitzler is distinctly Austrian. Like most of the modern Viennese playwrights he is content to take as his theme only a few scenes from life. His subject is always the same—a lover and a mistress or two. His power lies chiefly in the creation of an atmosphere. Tragic problems arise from time to time, but for the most part, the author moves upon the plane of comedy. His drama depends upon a crisis in the lives of two people; the inevitable passing from old relationships to new. The book contains Anatol Living Hours and Green Cockatoo.

Lavengro—Borrow
The hero's trials of mind and faith are depicted, when at the age of 19, he is cast upon the world in London to make his living as a hack author. Meeting with success with one of his books, he leaves London to roam abroad, and becomes in turn tinker, gypsy, postilion, and hostler, but ever preserves the self-respect of the poor gentleman in disguise. A tale of loosely connected adventures, introducing romantic, grotesque, and exciting episodes.

Pulmonary Tuberculosis—Brown
A layman's handbook for treatment. While written primarily for those who are ill, it contains much information of value to those who are well.

Women and Repeal—Root
The story of the fight which representative women from every state in the Union made against the 18th Amendment. Presented to the library by the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform.

Sieglind—Heal
Long ago when stories were told in song instead of books, the bard sang of this radiant hero of the north whose hair was golden-red and beautiful, and whose eyes were so keen that few could meet their glance. The old legend is retold for children of 10 and up.

New Copies of These Books—
Dickens—Tale of Two Cities
Kipling—Just So Stories
Baum—Land of Oz, Patchwork Girl of Oz, Tik-Tok of Oz.

The cement plant near Dixon is again in operation after a long period of idleness. It will be the first steady work its employees have had in a year and a half and the resumption of activity is a great boon to the city in general as well as a blessing to the individuals who will again be able to look at a pay check at regular intervals.

The extent of the run and the number of men employed will be gauged by the Dixon plant's share of the state cement contract. Given a fair share of that contract the Dixon plant will be in operation for a long period of time.

Dixon, Lee County and this section of the state should be loyal to the local cement plant and patronize home industry. No other brand of cement should be used in construction work here because when Dixon cement is used Dixon labor gets the benefit. If these local workmen cannot be employed the county has the responsibility of maintaining them and their families.

DRIVERS' LICENSE LAW PROPOSED.

Considering the fact that 2000 persons were killed in automobile accidents and 74,000 more were injured in this state in 1932, the Illinois conference on highway safety legislation is campaigning for adoption of two laws which might reduce the number of tragedies. The conference recommends adoption of a drivers' license law and a financial responsibility law.

The proposed law to license drivers requires every motorist to obtain a license before he can operate an automobile. After the license is issued, it could be revoked or suspended upon conviction of the holder for driving an automobile while being intoxicated, leaving the scene of an accident without giving aid and otherwise complying with the rules, for manslaughter in connection with motoring, or for perjury in connection with the operation or ownership of a car. The fee for securing a license would be 50 cents for three years. The knowledge that if one is so negligent in his driving as to cause an accident, his license may be revoked or suspended for as much as a year is expected to have a wholesome influence upon speeders and hazard-takers.

The financial responsibility law, intended to complement the license law, is now in operation in twenty-one states of this country and seven Canadian provinces. In effect, it would keep financially irresponsible motorists off the street after they have been involved in an accident for which they are unable to pay damages. Failure to pay damages after causing an accident would result in revocation or suspension of the driver's license, which could not be renewed unless the careless motorist gave evidence, in the form of cash, an insurance policy, or bond, that he could pay for future damage he might cause.

All the eastern states and most northern states except a few sparsely settled ones in the northwest now enforce license laws similar to the one recommended for Illinois.
Thickly populated northern states which have no such law are Illinois and Ohio.

Most of the northern states except Illinois, Ohio and West Virginia now enforce financial responsibility laws.

ECONOMIC INDEPENDENCE OF FILIPINO.

During the last dozen years the Philippine electorate has been choosing for its assembly the politicians who promised it political independence from the United States.
There was a lot of demagoguery about it, but that goes in the islands just as it goes on our plains and in our cities.

It appears that the Filipino wants to eat his cake and have it too. He wants political independence, but he wants the United States to guarantee payment of the bills.

For some years the demands for independence were unheard, or, at least unheeded. Finally the farmers who saw vegetable oils, products of cheap Filipino labor, coming in free of duty and in competition with their animal oils. They began to hear the demands of the Filipino for independence.

Having heard them they voted to allow the islands their independence if they accepted the proposal within a specified time. The proposal was that at the end of a period of more than ten years the islands should be free and that they devote the intervening years to adjusting themselves economically so that they may have economic as well as political independence of the United States. Economic independence really is the more important of the two.

Congress has passed a bill providing a tax of 3 cents a pound on coconut oil, which is the first lesson for the Filipino in economic independence.

Needless to say, the protest from the islands began at once, and it will be long and loud.

The next lesson probably will be in sugar. Cuba is our natural sugar bowl. It is the source of necessary supply in war. Yet we purchase large amounts from the Philippine islands because it comes in free from our possessions.
In war time delivery of Philippine sugar to us might be only under great difficulty.

The Filipino politicians talked too loud and too long,
and they were given too much authority by the electorate.
Ultimately they are going to get what they asked for, but what they do not want.

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The wind man blew the Tinies round, and wee Doty said "Where are we bound? I hope you do not blow us up so high that we will get lost."

"We've had a lot of rides in the air, but for this one we do not care. It really takes my breath away, each time we are dipped and tossed."

"Oh, don't you worry," cried the man. "I am like a big electric fan. When things appear in front of me, I blow them 'round and 'round."

"You are a funny sight to see.
That's why this stunt appeals to me. When I get tired of blowing you will float back to the ground."

"But, how soon will you get all tired out?" the wind man heard wee Doty shout. "Oh, maybe in a week or so," he answered, with a grin.

"Why, son, I haven't started yet and when I do, a thrill you will get. I will have you traveling so fast, you won't know where you have been."

"Say, I don't like that plan at all," said Doty. "I would rather fall. What have we done to you, that you should treat us all like this?"

"Oh, nothing," came the quick reply. "But I'm the ruler in the sky. Besides, why worry child, as long as nothing goes amiss?"

Just then brave Doty shouted,
"Look! A figure from a picture book is coming through the air. I am sure that it is Mother Goose."

"And now she is heading right our way. Ah, this may be our lucky day! Perhaps she'll make the mean old wind man turn all of us loose."

The kind old lady came real near, and then she shouted, "Dear one dear! You lots look scared to death. Why don't you climb right on my broom?"

"I'll take you all back to the ground," the bunch then climbed on, safe and sound. Said Mother Goose, "Get comfortable, because there is lots of room."

archway in the next story.)

Living Our Everyday Lives

ONCE UPON A TIME

(By Dr. Joseph Fort Newton)

Once upon a time, so runs an old Polish folk-story, there were two brothers, one was clever and the other stupid.

One day Misery, dressed as an old woman, came to the clever brother and asked him to take her in and feed her. He recognized her said, "There is no room for you in my cottage. Go to my younger brother, he's stupid enough to take you."

So Misery went to the stupid brother. She knocked at his door; when he opened it and saw her all in rags, he invited her in, and gave her food, and asked her to stay. Misery accepted his invitation.

Very soon everything began to go wrong. His cattle died; his sheep and fowls died; his wife fell ill, and they had no food and no fuel. The cottage was very cold and still Misery stayed.

Then the farmer said to her,
"You have made us poor, you have eaten more than all the rest of us put together, and now you must come with me to the forest to get some wood and find some food."

"What do you want to shoot?"
asked Misery, as he took down his gun and started off, though down in his heart he wanted to shoot her.

"Bears," said the farmer, "they are the biggest game and there's plenty to eat on a bear."

"And what will you shoot it with?" asked Misery. "I'll show you," said the man, and he took out some shot and put them into his gun.

"And how many have you got?"
"Get in and see," growled the man.
Then Misery made herself thinner and thinner, till she could crawl into the barrel of the gun. When she was right in he quickly lit the fuse and fired it off.

So Misery was blown into little pieces and the bits were scattered all over the world. Ever since that time there is not just one Misery, but wherever you go you will find a little bit of Misery. And that is A 104-Mile-an-Hour Train—And Ten Men Pull It!

A new chapter in the history of rail transportation was recorded in Philadelphia when the Zephyr, America's first Diesel-powered stream-line stainless steel train, sped at a rate of 104 miles an hour in its first trial run. So light that 10 men can pull it (as shown in the test above), the three-car train, which can accommodate 72 passengers, is shown below after its high speed test run. It was built for the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad.

Why everybody has a little Misery
and nobody has too much.
If it had not been so, clever folk would have no Misery, and stupid folk would have it all.

APPENDICITIS IN CHILDREN

Much has been written about the high rate of mortality from appendicitis. One phase of this matter needs special emphasis—appendicitis in children. The mortality of appendicitis is high, but it reaches its maximum in childhood.

Three factors appear to contribute to this: acute appendicitis appears to progress with greater speed in children than in the adult;
diagnosis of appendicitis in children is somewhat more difficult than in the adult, and the inclination of parents to treat what they judge to be an upset stomach with cathartics, namely, with castor oil, persists.

Delayed operation and the administration of cathartics are the most important factors responsible for fatal issues in appendicitis in children.

The constitution of the young child is in many respects radically different from that of the adult.
One of these concerns lymphoid tissue and its behavior. In the young, the lymphoid tissue is more plentiful and apparently more active. For this reason we find enlarged tonsils, enlarged adenoids
and glandular swellings so much more common among children.

The appendix is, among other things, a lymphoid organ. Infection or irritation of the appendix in the young provokes a degree of activity not seen in the inflamed appendix of the older person. There is a greater tendency for early rupture of the appendix and widespread peritonitis.

The classical symptoms of appendicitis, nausea, pain in the lower right portion of the abdomen, pain in the pit of the stomach or around the navel, and vomiting are fairly common in appendicitis in children, but the appendix may be inflamed and the disease may make threatening progress with most, if not all, these symptoms absent.

For this reason any child that has a persistent gastric upset and especially if it has suffered nausea and vomiting for a period of from 24 to 36 hours, should have close attention paid to its appendix.

RECRUITS STAR IN BROOKLYN'S VICTORY FRIDAY

Leonard and Koenecke Collaborate to Defeat Phillies

By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr. (Associated Press Sports Writer.) When Casey Stengel, new manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, admitted this spring he intended to build for the future, the boys from Flatbush figured that was just one way of admitting the Dodgers had little to hope for in 1934. Early performances at Ebbets Field, however, look as if someone already had done a little rebuilding with the current season in mind.

Emil Leonard, a knuckleball hurler who came up from New York, Pa., late last season, and Len Koenecke, known as the "$75,000 bust" when he failed to make good with the Giants a few years ago, got into the lineup almost by accident. But they did enough in one game yesterday to justify their being kept around a while.

Both Performed Well Leonard, named as a starting pitcher because Ray Benge failed to round into condition soon enough, shut out the Phillies with six hits to win his first start 5 to 0, gave only one walk and contributed a double to his own victory. Koenecke, posted in center field when Danny Taylor was injured, rapped Ed Holley and Ted Kleinhaus for two homers and a pair of singles that accounted for four Dodgers runs.

The New York Giants continued their unbroken string of triumphs in the only other National League game which survived yesterday's chilly weather. Scoring in two big innings on a combination of hard and "heavy" hitting, they trimmed the Braves 7 to 3 for their fourth straight victory. A homer by Mel Ott started them off on a three-run burst in the second, then after the Braves had tied the count with the aid of a four-bagger by Marty McManus, they crossed up pitcher Ben Cantwell with a couple of bunts and staged a four-run rally that won the game in the sixth.

Two in Mound Duel Detroit and Cleveland furnished the feature of the two-game American League program with a mound duel between Carl Fischer and Lloyd Brown which wound up abruptly in the ninth with Detroit the 4-0 victor. After eight scoreless innings the Tigers loaded the bases and Marvin Owen promptly unloaded them with a double, took third on the throw to the plate and squeezed home on Fischer's sacrifice.

Washington's mound staff again failed and the Athletics slugged out a 9 to 6 decision for the Senators' third straight defeat. The As wound up with 15 hits against eight for the Nats, plenty to win even though Washington collected 12.

Some Jumping Animals Some famous animal jumpers are the kangaroo, who is able to jump between 15 and 20 feet on the level—and can easily clear the ordinary hedges and fences. The springbok clears between 30 and 40 feet at a jump—and the flying squirrel travels about fifty feet in the air.

REPUBLICANS OF STATE PREPARE FOR BIG FIGHT

Former Governor F. O. Lowden Asked to Take Command

Springfield, Ill., Apr. 21—(AP)—The name of Lowden again is to rally Republicans into a political campaign. Starting their reorganization with expressions of confidence for a November victory, Illinois party leaders decided to invite former Governor Frank O. Lowden to preside over the state convention here August 9.

Justus L. Johnson of Aurora, new chairman of the State Central Committee, predicted that the days of Democratic supremacy are limited.

After the perfunctory convention yesterday, Johnson issued the following statement:

Don't Want Dictators
 "The Republican party in Illinois is more united and harmonious than at any time in many years. We will begin our state reorganization campaign at once, certain that the people of Illinois still believe in the firmly established principles of American government. They do not want to be regimented like the people of Europe under its dictators."

"Our people do not want a continuance of the present management of public affairs. They are fed up with tactics of the state administration, especially with regard to legislative affairs."

"We look forward confidently to a great Republican victory in Illinois in November. All recent political signs point that way."

Others at the brief session also accepted the gage of battle for the off-year political campaign. The fair grounds coliseum here was picked for the formal convention, with August 9 as the date, and it was decided that Lowden is the best choice for permanent chairman.

If he accepts the invitation, the former Governor would deliver the major speech at the convention. Lowden has not taken an active part in politics since he sought the 1928 presidential nomination but organization leaders believe he has an unusually large following in Illinois.

Policies Denounced
 As temporary convention chairman, C. Wayland Brooks of Chicago was named. He is one of the nominees for Congressmen-at-large. He denounced Democratic policies and said:

"Let's not let the Democrats tell us we're the minority party; in this primary we polled the highest number of votes a party out of power ever polled in this state."

The convention preliminaries were completed with the naming of Jesse R. Brown of Alton, congressional nominee and former circuit judge, as temporary secretary.

It was late in the day before the newly elected members of the State Central Committee agreed to organize in the absence of their certificates fixing individual voting strength.

There was no opposition to Johnson, who as clerk of the Second District Appellate Court was the only Illinois Republican to win in 1932 in a contest covering more territory than a congressional district.

Edward Goetz of Chicago was named secretary, but the new chairman is to appoint the treasurer and executive committee.

Three vice-chairmen were named. The first time this office has been used by Illinois Republicans, to appease all factions. They are John H. Searing of Carbondale, Roy Barnes of Bushnell and John F. Tyrrell of Chicago.

Destructive Tidal Wave

Not Due to Sun or Moon
 A tidal wave has nothing to do with the tide, but is caused by one of two or three things: Earthquakes, storms (which may be distant from where the wave is felt), and high winds. A true tidal wave is nothing other than the tide, says an authority in the Kansas City Star.

The tidal wave of science is caused by the slight bulging of ocean waters on opposite sides of the globe, due to the attraction of the moon and the sun. As the earth rotates on its axis the bulge is carried around it and creates the rise and fall of the tide which is so well known to those who live along sea coasts and which occurs twice a day.

The tidal wave which does the damage to lives and property is not due to any attraction of sun or moon, and, according to the expert, there is nothing mysterious about such waves, even though they occasionally arrive in calm weather. When they occur in times of calm, it is merely because a storm has set up the gigantic wave at some other point, the wave continuing to roll until it breaks over land.

More than 36,000 persons drowned in the wave which followed the eruption in 1883 of the volcano Kratau in the Straits of Sunda. The wave which followed the eruption probably was the highest ever known. It reached a point on certain hillsides which was 115 feet above the normal level of the ocean's surface.

CURRY OUSTED AS LEADER OF TAMMANY HALL

"Man of Blunders" Is Defeated in Effort to Retain Post

New York April 21—(AP)—John F. Curry's opposition to men who win elections has cost him the leadership of Tammany Hall.

The silver haired chief, dubbed by his opponents "the man of blunders," was removed by the executive committee last night by a vote of 14-13 to 10-16. One member, controlling half a vote was not present.

It was the most drastic action ever taken against a wigwag leader in the 135 years of the Hall's existence, although threats of similar action against leaders in the past has resulted in resignations.

William P. Kenneally, chairman of the committee, will call a meeting next week to select Curry's successor, which, however, will not be an individual but a steering committee of three, five or seven members. No agreement has been reached on the membership of the committee.

Curry's opponents charged that through a series of political blunders he had lost patronage, the cardinal sin of a political leader, until the Tammany tiger had become a very lean animal indeed.

"HAPPY FAMILY" ABOARD INSULL PRISON VESSEL

Former Utilities Ruler Talks Freely On Trip Home

S. S. Exilona, in the Mediterranean, April 21—(AP)—Seven days out on the good ship Exilona, with seventeen more to go, and the thirteen passengers are like one happy family.

The fact that one of the passengers—Samuel Insull—is under detention; that another—Burton Berry—is guarding him, and that five other are here to write about these two has not interfered with the harmonious community life which is typical of long voyages.

Life on deck and in the saloon passes tranquilly, as if past and future were forgotten by the dozen and one travelers separated temporarily from their accustomed grooves in society.

In the discreet presence of his custodian wherever Insull happens to be and the latter's reminiscences as he talks with newspaper men remind the company that the man is being taken home to face criminal charges in the city where he built up an industrial empire.

Were Resentful
 Five regular passengers at first showed some resentment toward the official and journalistic element which they feared would disturb the tranquility of the voyage.

Now they complain only that the sending of press dispatches disturbs their slumber. The thirteenth passenger is the wife of one of the correspondents.

Always willing and frequently eager to talk, Insull discusses very clearly and with evidence of an exceptional memory political, business and social subjects. Only when the subject of his plans for the future is broached does he become silent. He would not even state who will be his attorney in Chicago.

Sometimes he himself brings up the subject of his hurried departure from Athens on the chartered tramp steamer, Malotis, and his detention in Turkey. But he is careful never to let anything the public does not already know.

DEFICITS MAIN WORRY OF BOTH MAJOR PARTIES

More Concerned Over Funds Than Leadership Problems

Washington, April 21—(AP)—The question of money—how to get it—is beginning to bother the two national parties, deep in deficit, more than any troubles over leadership.

The tell-tale November elections aren't far away, and both Democrats and Republicans are giving immediate attention to a hunt for funds to wage the struggle for congressional seats.

But leadership questions haven't been shunted altogether.

Revolt continues to brew in the Republican camp against the chairmanship of Everett Sanders of Indiana. The anti-Sanders group claimed enough signatures today to call a meeting of the party's National Committee, and such a session may be called within the next 30 days under the leadership of Charles Hilles of New York.

Democrats are coasting along under present leadership. President Roosevelt has agreed that Postmaster Farley may relinquish his post as national party chairman.

The word of the politically wise, however, was that in the case of both Democrats and Republicans considerable doubt exists that anything will be done until after the fall elections.

Neither party has jumped at chances to name new chairmen until the November balloting is over. In other words, both want to go into the 1936 campaign with a clean slate.

DEMOCRATS OF ILLINOIS HELD BIG CONVENTION

1,500 Attended Meeting in Springfield Yesterday P. M.

Springfield, Ill., Apr. 21—(AP)—Illinois Democrats, 1500 strong, today had scattered to all parts of the state carrying with them messages of praise for their party's course in the last two years and a prediction from their leaders that victory in November was assured.

The Democrats, delegates to yesterday's state convention, met in the hall of Representatives amid scenes of harmony, enthusiasm and confidence in the future.

The convention gave unstinted praise to the state and national administrations, extended enthusiastic welcomes to its candidates in the November election, and cheered lustily when Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago extolled Governor Horner and predicted he would be nominated for a second term without opposition.

Early Battle Settled
 While all was harmony and enthusiasm in the convention, earlier sessions of party leaders were not without their differences. Governor Horner had insisted that if the chairman of the state committee was to go to Bruce Campbell of Belleville, as it did, he was entitled to select the secretary from among his personal followers. This meant the elimination of Edward Allen of Quincy as secretary.

Finally, Allen and his followers agreed that he would step aside for the appointment of Daniel Sullivan, Chicago, State Administrative Auditor. In return Allen was elected vice chairman of the committee along with three others, John Yantis of Shelbyville, Leo J. Slaski of Chicago and Stephen Carynski of Chicago.

Horner Has Way
 The Governor also had his way as to the selection of permanent officers for the convention. Earlier leaders had decided he would deliver the keynote address as temporary chairman and that Mayor Kelly would serve as permanent chairman.

This did not suit state administration forces, which insisted the Governor should also serve as permanent chairman. Finally Kelly agreed to step aside in order that the day might be wholly the Governor's, so no fight over convention officers was precipitated on the floor.

In addition, the convention named E. J. Coyne, Carrollton, secretary, A. E. Eden, Champaign, assistant secretary, and William A. Haberkorn, Chicago, sergeant-at-arms.

It nominated Oscar G. Mayer, Evanston, Mrs. Glenn E. Plum, Chicago, and Harold Pogue, Decatur, as its candidates for Trustees of the University of Illinois.

HALLEY'S ONLY SERMON TO BE GIVEN SUNDAY

Famous Bible Student to Complete Series of Lectures Here

A crowded house listened last night to the lecture on the Book of Revelations by H. H. Halley at the First Methodist church. He gave a brief outline of church history and then expounded the language of the book, pointing out here and there parallels between the imagery in the book and the features of history; not however, insisting that his interpretation was the correct one. He merely gave it as one of the commonest interpretations, stating that there are many varied interpretations, and that we ought not, in any case, to feel too sure that we are right in this mysterious book. The audience seemed to thoroughly appreciate it.

There is to be a meeting tonight. The subject is Paul's Greatest Work. Mr. Halley said he regarded Paul as the greatest man of all the ages, second only to Jesus, and the study tonight will be about his greatest single work.

The meetings will close Sunday evening at which time Mr. Halley will preach his only sermon. The subject will be "The Most Urgent Need of American Protestantism." Speaking of this he said, "If it could be arranged for me to have a different audience each night I would be glad to forget all about my Bible recitals and the long years of hard work in learning them, and spend the rest of my life doing nothing but preaching that one sermon. I saw this to try to make you see how important I think the things are that I am going to say in that sermon."

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 PABLITO, a handsome youth accused of a murder he did not commit, escapes from Key West to Havana with two thieves. BEAU and LOTTIE, in Havana, under the name of "Juanito," he becomes celebrated as a boxer and he and Beau open a gymnasium.

Pablito loves ESTELLE FIELD, daughter of rich Jim Field, and she loves him. They meet and plan to marry, but Field breaks up the affair, taking Estelle away. Two years later she becomes engaged to ALEC DAVIDS.

SIR AUBREY, titled Englishman, and Pablito's father has been searching for his son, employing BILLINGS, New York detective.

Believing Estelle faithless, Pablito asks Lottie to marry him. Field loses his fortune and Estelle, she and her father return to Havana. MARCIA TREADWELL, who knows Pablito is innocent of the murder charge, at last tells the truth, clearing him.

Lottie overhears Marcia's story and warns Beau—the real murderer. He leaves hastily.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
 CHAPTER XLV

MARCIA left Pablito in a mood that was a mixture of relief and the utmost bitterness. All these years he had been suffering for a crime he had not committed. Suffering loneliness and hopelessness and the loss of the one girl in the world he loved. All these years—

Lottie came into the room. "What's the matter, honey boy?" she demanded carelessly.

"Nothing."

"You look it! Beau's gone—"

Pablito looked up quickly at that.

"Decided he needed a change of air," Lottie added lightly.

"Did you listen to what we were saying?" he demanded. She answered with a nonchalant, easy, "Sure."

"I wasn't going to give Beau away," Pablito said, frowning.

"Oh, he knew that," she answered, "but that woman who was here might any time. See?"

"Yes, I see—"

He pulled himself up wearily and moved toward the doorway opening on the balcony. Everything in his life had come too late. If Marcia Treadwell had told the truth a few years earlier nothing in the world could have kept him from marrying Estelle. Now—

"Let's go over and see what they're doing on the house this afternoon," Lottie suggested.

"If you like," he agreed.

"Say, if you don't want to go, just say so! Nobody's going to make you do it."

"I want to all right. I'm just a little tired, I guess."

"Do you love me, Pablito? Love me a little bit, uh?"

"I've asked you to marry me, Lottie."

Her face clouded.

"I know I'm not very demonstrative," he admitted. "I'm sorry."

"You ain't much good at pretending," she said harshly. But he thought he was a little better at pretending than she knew.

"Be a little patient with me, will you, Lottie?" he asked, not quite steadily.

But even her love for him could not teach her patience. Soon Lottie was crying and he was obliged to comfort her and pretend some more.

"You do love me, don't you?" she said, mopping her eyes and choking back the last of her sobs.

"Of course I do, Lottie," he said dully. "I'm a lucky chap and I know it."

"You'll never know how I love you, Pablito. Never!"

"You're awfully good to me, Lottie."

"Good? Kiss me, honey. Oh—not like that!"

What if he should drop his arms and say, "I can't go through with it, Lottie! I can't! What would happen then?" He had not known she would be so demanding for demonstrations of affection. He had not known that pretense could be so hard.

ESTELLE wrote Pablito that evening. She had to send the letter by post because there was no chauffeur now to carry messages. She wrote:

"Dear Pablito: It is good to write your real name without fear. Marcia has told my father and he what she has told you. too. I am so glad for you. I have not for a long while been so glad about anything."

"I want to see you and wonder whether you will want to come to see me. It has been a long time since we have met but, remembering our hours together as I have so keenly since being here, I feel that—oh, I don't know. I can't express it."

"I hurt you horribly, I know. Perhaps if I had been stronger I would have seen some way to avoid doing that. But I want to tell you now that I love you as much as I can ever love anyone and I will marry you if you still want me to.—Estelle."

PABLITO reread the note slowly. His eyes blurred by the dizziness he had swept over him as he read it the first time. Then the servant appeared at the top of the stairs and behind her Pablito saw—Norris Noyes!

For a moment Noyes paused; then he moved forward with a weak, groping "Pablito!"

Pablito clung to Noyes' hands. The two made the small meaningless comments people make when emotions are too great to be expressed by words. At length Pablito said, "I have never needed you so much as now—"

And even Noyes, in his humility, could believe that Pablito was thin. His eyes were tired and his lips were set to that grim line which tells of a vast determination and an equally vast hopelessness.

"What's wrong?" the older man asked.

"It's nothing that can be changed," Pablito assured him. "I wouldn't even bother you about it but you know I've always told you everything—"

For a moment he pressed the letter in his pocket, then abruptly his hand dropped. He had no right to press that letter nor feel it shaken and ecstatic warmth as he touched it. He must write Estelle and tell her he was engaged to be married. To write her that after she had told him she loved him as much as she could love anyone!

"A man named Billings sent a note to you," Noyes said, "but I forgot it. I left it on the bureau propped before the glass but I was so excited—"

"We'll get it when we get your things," Pablito said. He put an arm around Noyes' stooped shoulders and for a short moment forgot that things had a way of coming to him too late.

LOTTIE was assembling her trousseau—gaudy frocks and fragile underthings of orchid, peach and sapphire chiffon. Collecting this finery, she came as close to happiness as she had been since Pablito had asked her to marry him. Sometimes in the nights Lottie woke with tears on her cheeks. Pablito was not happy, she knew. Well, she vowed in her bravest mood, she'd make him so. But at other times she realized she did not know how to make him happy.

She went to La Merced a good deal those days. The church appealed to her and warmed her a little as she struggled to be near that embracing, comforting Someone who was spoken of so easily and often as "God."

And here among the women who knelt with devout eyes on the altar Lottie would sometimes pray ardently in her own manner: "God, I haven't gone so very straight but, honest, I promise you if you'll just give me this chance—"

She liked Noyes and called him a "good old scout," but his eyes, as they rested on her, were too frankly appraising for her comfort. She affected little mannerisms when with him. An airy "My dear," was one of her favorites. It sounded odd as she leaned forward to say, "Honest to God, my dear—"

Noyes pitied the girl deeply but was distracted at the thought of her becoming Pablito's wife.

He said one morning after Lottie had lost her temper and thrown a cup of tea at the fast disappearing servant, "Pablito, you can't marry that girl!"

"But I'm going to," Pablito said grimly. "I owe her a lot," he added more gently, "and she cares for me. Besides, I've already asked her. The thing's done."

"Things can be undone."

There was no answer to that. Presently Noyes went on, "I've heard that you cared for Jim Field's daughter."

"I still do," Pablito let himself say.

"Then you're not being fair to her—to Lottie."

"I'm sorry," Pablito shook his head. "I can't talk about it. Besides, it's all settled."

DOOLITTLE BUSY SELLING PLANES TO THE CHINESE

Capt. Hawks and Italian Ace Also Stunt to Get New Business

Shanghai, April 21—(AP)—Japanese frowns on aircraft purchases by China have gone unheeded by foreign airplane dealers.

Their spectacular selling campaigns, marked by daring aerial tricks over downtown Shanghai, continued unabated today with American and Italian dealers in the forefront.

Lieutenant James H. Doolittle, who demonstrated a high-powered American combat plane, began the practice of using overhead Shanghai as a demonstration ground when in recent months he started Chinese and foreigners alike with his exploits above the rooftops.

Splendid Exhibit
There is a fine exhibit of pictures on display in the window of Kelley's store. They were painted by the seventh and eighth grade pupils of the local school for the Woman's Club art contest. Each year such a contest is sponsored by this organization for the purpose of creating a love of art and a desire to develop the artistic ability of every child. This year the subject chosen was "Wild Flowers of Illinois."

Messdames Aurelia Spangler, Grace Breunler and Daisy Blocher acted as judges for the local chapter and awarded the first prize of $1.00 to Garnet Royster; the second prize of 50c to Avis Royster and the white ribbon for honorable mention to Hazel Blume.

The first of the week the posters are to be sent to Mt. Carroll where they are to be entered in the district contest. Those receiving prizes will then be sent on to compete in the state contest.

It has been a number of years since the local school has made any entries in these contests so it is a matter of deep satisfaction to Mrs. Moore, the art chairman, to note with what a fine spirit of cooperation the teacher and pupils responded. Twenty-three pictures are on exhibit.

Miss Thompson, the art supervisor, and also the pupils should be highly commended for the time and effort which were expended on this project.

Very Helpful Meeting
A most interesting and instructive program was presented at the Community meeting held in the Church of the Brethren recently. The topic of discussion was "Temperance Education in the Community," the "temperance" being defined according to the maxim of the philosopher Aristotle, as the use of the forces of life to the extent necessary for the welfare of the race—no more, no less. Applying this definition of the word "temperance" to the use of alcohol as a beverage it was agreed that abstinence best fosters the welfare of the community and the race, and that this can only come about as the result of education.

Rev. C. P. Blekking of the Presbyterian church spoke on such education in the home, also the disastrous results to the physical, economic and spiritual life of the home which may be brought about by the indulgence in alcoholic beverages by its members.

Supt. Leland T. Hanson of the local high school, spoke most convincingly of the importance of temperance education in the public schools. He pointed out that with the repeal of the 18th Amendment, the matter has changed largely from a legal question to that of a moral and individual nature and as in all such matters, the school, together with the home and the church, has a duty to instruct and train the youth of the community the unquestionable effects of alcohol on the physical, economic and social life of the entire community. He referred to the "education" favorable to the "benefits" of beverage alcohol which is being broadcast by the liquor interest by radio, newspapers and magazines, billboards and movies, and suggested that if we wished the rising generation to absorb that sort of an idea, all that we needed to do was to sit still and do nothing. But he also asserted that if people of the community wish the matter presented through the schools in a scientific systematic course of study, he felt sure that they would be ready to cooperate.

Rec. O. D. Buck of the Church of the Brethren spoke on the matter of "Temperance Education in the Church," stating that the church, while in perfect sympathy and harmony with the work of the home and school along this line, yet had a somewhat different responsibility; first, to possibly reach some who did not receive this contact through either source; and second, as in all moral and spiritual ual matters, to interpret the Word of God concerning our duty to others and to ourselves. He read a number of scripture passages which portrayed clearly the moral duty of man in this respect.

The Presbyterian choir under the direction of Miss Esther Dismang gave two beautiful selections, which were highly appreciated.

A Falling Star
A falling star is a meteor. If it actually reaches the earth it is known as a meteorite. Meteors are tiny masses which under certain circumstances of motion and position dash into the earth's atmosphere at a speed of from 10 to 40 miles per second. The heat generated by the friction with the upper air usually completely vaporizes or burns them.

Bear Has White Collar
A white collar extending from the base of the neck well back onto the shoulders distinguishes the Tibetan grizzly from other bears. When full grown this species may attain a weight of between 250 and 300 pounds.

IF BANK DEPOSITORS Did the Lending

There is a great deal of newspaper criticism of bankers today for not lending more freely—money which belongs largely to their depositors.

Suppose the banker should say to his depositors, "I am tired of being criticized. You decide for yourselves to whom your money shall be loaned—how much of it, and for how long!" Would the depositors be more liberal—or would they be even more cautious than good bankers are today?

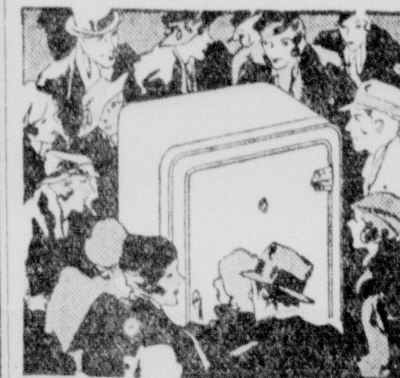

Every banker wants all the good, safe loans he can get—but he will not accept any which do not measure up to his standards of safety. Protection of his depositors' interests comes first, always.
